Joining Hands with God

Dr. Jeff Roberts, Senior Pastor

jr Roberts@tbcraleigh.com • Twitter: @Jeff_Roberts

In 1 Timothy 5:1-2, Paul gives these instructions to the young pastor Timothy.

Don't be harsh or impatient with an older man. Talk to him as you would your own father, and to the younger men as your brothers. Reverently honor an older woman as you would your mother, and the younger women as sisters.

Paul is instructing Timothy to treat people in the congregation like family. In a church culture that might be situated in a small town, rural village or even just a smaller congregation, the concept of "family" is easier to maintain. However, in a large metropolitan church like Trinity the concept of family is harder to grasp. As our church continues to change, the challenge to know one another and feel a sense of connection is a growing concern. Many of us would admit that at church we have several good friends and then we have acquaintances. And a much larger number of people we don't know with whom we share a common experience we call Trinity. In a changing and busy culture the idea of the church as family is rapidly disappearing.

Yet, the New Testament uses the terms of family to describe the relationship we are to seek with one another. We are to view one another as brothers and sisters in Christ. In Paul's terms, we are to treat those who are older like beloved parents and those younger like brothers and sisters. Paul gives us some insight in how this occurs in the church. We are not to have an attitude of honor. To honor someone is to hold them in high regard. Paul says we are to honor those older than us like we would our parents. Paul assumes that a person would honor their natural parents since this is one of the 10 commandments. We are instructed to honor our father and mother and thus we now expand that attitude toward others in the congregation. To honor someone does not mean you "do as they say". In fact, Timothy is told to exhort those who are older. Timothy, as a young pastor, is to encourage those who are older to Christ like living but to do so with a proper attitude.

In addition, we are instructed to treat those who are younger like brothers and sisters. Notice Paul does not say to treat them as children. To treat them as children belittles their place in regards to their opinions and gifts they have to offer now in the life of the church. As you can see, Paul is instructing us to have a certain attitude toward others in the congregation and that attitude is honor, respect and care.

One of our core values is Fellowship. In this core value, we state that Fellowship is intentional. In other words, we will not just "become" family without some effort. We must value this Biblical teaching enough to create family. There are many ways we can do this.

If your senior adult parent(s)'s care weighs heavily on your heart and mind, this every-other-month gathering is for you. All of us struggle with "honor your parents" at this stage in our lives. Hearing each other's stories helps us understand that we are not alone.

An email reminder is sent out several days before the gathering. If you would like to be on that list, please send an email to hmelton@tbcraleigh.com. Then join us when you can!

We can first of all be present. It is hard to feel a part of a family when you are not present with family. Showing up and sharing the experience of worship is a start. However, we know that this is not enough. In fact, we can share an experience of worship but it can become like any other event we attend with strangers. When we show up we need to speak up. We need to take the time to meet others, greet others and sometimes just tarry for moment after worship to "catch up" with those around us in worship. We can pray for each other. Have you ever asked the person who sits behind you or in front of you in the sanctuary "Tell me something I can pray for you about this week?" We can honor each other with our attention and concern.

This coming week we will be lead in worship by our Senior Adults. This will be an opportunity for us to show honor and to celebrate all that God has done in their lives, as well as to discover what God has for us together. We will be honoring a very special person in Baptist life with our Heritage Award, as well as presenting one of our High School graduates with a scholarship presented by our Senior Adults.

I will be preaching on the subject "Growing Older and Growing Up" from Titus 2:1-8. I look forward to seeing you as we gather for worship this Sunday.

August 12-20 • Cost: $1,200

SIGN-UP DEADLINE: THIS SUNDAY

We will be continuing our work on the Santa Elena Baptist Primary School with Pastor Manny Cowo and the great people of Santa Elena. You'll meet families / friends that we have gotten to know over the years including the children that attend the school who live in the neighborhood. At this time it is still a guess as to how far along the congregation will be in their work on the building. But we may be installing windows and doors into the two 30x30 classrooms we are working on.

We will be staying at the Aguada Hotel within walking distance of the worksite. And their cooks will serve us a hot breakfast and full dinner each day. One of the church families will bring our lunch to the worksite.

We will work on Saturday, then attend church with the Santa Elena Baptist Church on Sunday and take in some Mayan ruins or go cave tubing. We'll work full days Monday through Thursday, and spend our last day on the island of Caye Caulker relaxing, snorkeling, fishing or just exploring this small Caribbean paradise!

The Great Spiritual Migration

When Jesus saw this, he was indignant. He said to them, "Let the children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these." – Mark 10:14

The past week I attended a conference in Chicago called Faith Forward. It is an ecumenical gathering of ministers/clergy and lay leadership with a focus toward youth and children's ministry of the future. Some questions we addressed were: How are the elders of our congregations to relate to the next generation? How are we including them in the worship and leadership of the church? What is our response to the violence and segregation of our society? Brian McLaren, a pastor, speaker, public theologian, ecumenical networker, and activist, is the think tank personality behind this movement. He offers a keen perspective on the future of church as well as Christianity itself.

Here is one thought. Christianity is one generation away from extinction or one generation away from regeneration. Will our churches become the empty tourist attractions like in Europe? Or will we be able to include and encourage our young to own their faith and live it out as an adult? Revitalization is growing up around us with our children.

Brian dared to ask, "What would it mean if I were to say—forget about medium and older adults and focus on youth and children. Dare to propose that Christianity is run by youth on mission." Of course, this is not realistic but it does offer the challenge to go beyond providing "wholesome" activities for our children/youth but to really engage them in society and the church so they own their part in the experience of faith.

His new book is titled, The Great Spiritual Migration: How the world's largest religion is seeking a better way to be Christian suggests the following:

People by the millions are migrating out of traditional religion - some into secularism, some into experimental forms of nonreligious spirituality. But even within religious communities, people are on the move, migrating in exciting new directions. Brian D. McLaren challenges Christians to embark on a great spiritual migration: to seize this dynamic moment as an opportunity for Christian faith to become more just, generous, and joyful - and therefore more truly Christian.

I have a hope for the future and a deep desire to include our children in the all aspects of church and worship. Join me in the journey with the next generation.

LEARNING: How Young Children Learn

How do you learn? How do you acquire information or develop opinions? Perhaps you do this by reading a book, by listening, or by talking with someone else. Much of adult learning is by means of words the symbols by which we are able to communicate. However learning in preschool years is different than learning in adult years. The mind of a child can not comprehend ideas that are only expressed in words. Children do learn the following ways:

- Through their senses
- By repetition
- By practice and play
- By imitation
- By connection words and action

In order to see long term results for your efforts, all dimensions must be included for a child to learn. Your role is not merely to transmit truth; you must also demonstrate truth in practical everyday activities.
